SELF FROM CHNOLOGY FAILURE

Today's modern vehicle technology is very advanced and innovative, with some systems being able to see other vehicles, objects or children in the way; anticipate collisions; and automatically apply the brakes or take corrective steering actions, if needed.

These high-tech systems rely on a number of sensors, cameras, lasers and radar to gather data and monitor what's going on around the vehicle, as well as the road itself. This data is processed by computers, which then prompt action either from the vehicle or the driver.

As savvy as the technology is, though, it's not immune from failing, just like all electronics. That's why you often see extended protection plans for phones and computers. If repairing this kind of special technology can be rather costly for a tablet or laptop, imagine how much it would cost on a vehicle!

Without some sort of protection, it could cost you as much—if not more—as an engine or other major repair. How does that fit into your normal monthly budget? Chances are, it doesn't.

Fortunately, MBPI has you covered. Our OEM Technology Protection can cover the replacement cost of parts and labor when a system has a failure. Protect yourself and your vehicle by planning for this failure ahead of time and building it into your monthly car payment.
